James T Webb : Economic Justice: America's War to Win before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised Economic Justice: America's War to Win:

In 2008 America was Ready for its 1st African American President. But was America Ready to Save it's own Low Income African American and Poor Neighborhoods? Was America Ready to see her 1st African American Self Made Multi Millionaire Master Builder return to rebuild poor black neighborhoods in the Deep South? After creating over 1000 Jobs and rebuilding close to 1000 previously condemned and dilapidated homes in Low Income African American Neighborhoods James T. Webb Master Builder was indicted in a 10 year old (Civil/Criminal Conspiracy) which he named (C4), based solely on RACE. It was SAFE for Eastern North Carolina FDIC Banks to loan Webb Millions of Dollars to Build Mansions and Churches, but when he dared to [return] to Rebuild Low Income African American Low Income Neighborhoods, what he experienced after being [warned] by his Attorney, was the worst Economic Lynching of an individual, in America's History.

About the Author James T. Webb was born in 1961 in Wilmington NC. He was taught growing up to believe in himself, to love Jesus and to never ever say "I Can't". Growing up in the rural community of Leland N.C. he never experienced the pains of racial or class bias. After attending NCCU, he followed his dream to become a leader. He became Student Body President there just as he had done at North Brunswick High School. Leland was a close community where all the people he knew, respected and loved each other. After college he became an Unlimited Licensed N.C. General Contractor and built small homes, mansion and Churches. His dream was and still is to Rebuild Americas Low Income Communities. Little did he know the challenges he would meet. He has written 3 books on how to make his dream of Affordable Housing for all people a reality. After seeing the best in people and the worst in people he hopes to set the Record straight so that he can get back to Rebuilding America from the Bottom UP. Learn and be inspired from his challenges and successes.
