1 of 2 people found the following review helpful. Highly recommended for it's concise, thorough, and scholarly presentation of the modern reconstruction processBy Midwest Book ReviewCollaboratively co-authored by the team of Seth G. Jones, Jeremy M. Wilson, Andrew Rathmell, and K. Jack Riley, and enhanced with the inclusion of an extensive bibliography for further study and reference, Establishing Law And Order After Conflict is a 261-page seminal study of the post-Cold War reconstruction and international security forces, in terms of establishing a post-conflict justice system in the aftermath of oppressive authoritarian governments and what were often brutal and bloody conflicts. Offering a descriptive interpretation of the efforts involved in rebuilding economically, politically, and physically on a national level for countries such as Kosovo, Iraq, and Afghanistan, Establishing Law And Order After Conflict delves deeply into an informed analysis of conflict and reform aimed at providing a much needed foundation for restoring national security. Establishing Law And Order After Conflict is very highly recommended for its concise, thorough, and scholarly presentation of the modern reconstruction process in societal, economic, and cultural stabilization of impoverished and conflicted countries.

In a nation-building operation, outside states invest much of their resources in establishing and maintaining the host country's police, internal security forces, and justice system. This book examines post-Cold War reconstruction efforts, such as those in Iraq and Afghanistan, and assesses the success of U.S. and allied efforts in reconstructing internal security institutions.

Postintervention reconstruction and democratization are highly topical these days, and this RAND Corporation study poses policy and case study conclusions about 'best practice' in establishing stability and security... The triple emphasis on policy inputs, outputs, and outcomes are comprehensive and worthwhile. Recommended. General readers through practitioners. CHOICE Magazine From the Inside Flap Examines nation-building efforts in such countries as Iraq and Afghanistan, and assesses the success of U.S. and allied efforts in reconstructing internal security institutions. About the Author Seth G. Jones is Adjunct Professor in the Security Studies Program at Georgetown University and Political Scientist at the RAND Corporation. He is a distinguished scholar of European affairs, state-building operations and counterterrorism. Professor Jones was Europe Editor at The Christian Science Monitor, is a contributor to The New York Times, The Financial Times, and National Interest and has appeared on the BBC, CNN and other national and international television and radio programs.
