Stephen Kinsella : EU Technology Licensing (Palladian Law) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised EU Technology Licensing (Palladian Law):

This is a book for competition lawyers,whether advising companies within the EU or non-EU companies trading with the EU. The Technology Transfer Block Exemption Regulation is still both confused and confusing in many respects. This book provides a concise and user-friendly guide to the Regulation and analyses the Regulation in a practical way, clause by clause.

From the PublisherKinsella produces a concise and user-friendly guide to the regulation. His approach is practical, suggesting solutions rather than looking for theoretical difficulties. In his analysis of the Technology Transfer Block Exemption Regulation and in his commentary, Kinsella attempts to resolve some of the confusion inherent in the regulation, or, where that proves impossible, to suggest an approach to a solution.About the AuthorStephen Kinsella is a partner with Herbert Smith and has worked in Brussels for the last 10 years, specialising in competition law.
